

Notes on the use of the measures/ Materials

Our security and privacy awareness measures (e.g. flyers, posters, videos) are protected by copyright. They are licensed under a Creative Commons license. We distinguish between the following cases when using these measures:

- Integration into websites and/or intranet pages purely as information for citizens or the workforce. The following is important here: (1) the measures are not mandatory in any form for anyone and are not mentioned as part of security/privacy awareness to auditors/evaluators in order to achieve compliance with standards such as IT-Grundschutz; (2) the measures are either "only" linked or the measures are offered 1:1 (i.e. completely unchanged, in particular retaining the KIT logo and the information with regard to the publisher). In the second case, make sure that it is clear from the surrounding text that these are not external measures and that they were not financed by you. In this case, you can include this free of charge. We would be pleased if you could inform us in this case and we could name you as a reference user on the website. Simply send an e-mail to rebekka.golling@kit.edu
- Integration into your own security and privacy awareness measures, which will also be documented by you. In the case of proof of compliance with standards such as IT baseline protection, these measures are also mentioned. In this case, integration is not possible free of charge. The reason for this is that you would either have to pay other providers for comparable measures or invest time and resources in the development yourself. In this case, please send a request to rebekka.golling@kit.edu with details of a) the measures you would like to use; b) the form in which you would like to use them - if applicable, for how many people; c) whether you would like to use the measures 1:1 in the KIT design or whether you would like the original files in order to integrate them into your own corporate design. We will then make you an offer. This is not possible for the online game "Phishing Master" and our videos.
- Integration as a security / privacy (consulting) company. Since our measures increase the value of your own offer, free use is not permitted here. In this case, please send a request to rebekka.golling@kit.edu with details a) of the measures you would like to use; b) in what form you would like to use them - if applicable, for how many people; c) whether you would like to use the measures 1:1 in the KIT design or whether you would like the original files in order to integrate them into your own corporate design. This is not possible for the online game "Phishing Master" and our videos.
- Integration as part of a joint project. We are always on the lookout for cooperation partners who enable us to evaluate new measures in the field, possibly in combination with existing ones. In this case, we would draw up a cooperation agreement that regulates which data we are allowed to collect and publish in order to evaluate our measures. And in return, which measures you can use internally free of charge. In this case, please send a request to melanie.volkamer@kit.edu
- If you are interested in training courses (in the form of e-learning or face-to-face events), please contact us to discuss the conditions. rebekka.golling@kit.edu